

CONTENTS

JANUARY/FEBRUARY 2016

Makers & making

12–17 Shadows & light

James Oughtibridge and the making of his sinuous ceramic sculptures

18–19 Pieces of a porcelain puzzle

The story behind the meticulous restoration of a giant porcelain fountain

24–27 Rebels & renegades

How ceramic pieces play their part in the world's political climate

28–30 The glamour of glaze

Riccardo Gori has spent fifteen years developing crystalline glazes for his ceramic jewellery

33–36 Second time around

If your new year's resolution is to turn to ceramics full time, meet three people who have made the leap, with exciting results

38–41 Revolutionary among revolutionaries

Waleed Qaisi has witnessed war, which in turn has informed his ceramic art

42–47 The potter & the plantsman

A dazzling collection of Alan Caiger-Smith's Aldermaston work is now housed at Great Dixter, the home of his late friend Christopher Lloyd

50–52 Priceless 'purcelane'

A new Amsterdam show of treasures from the Dutch Empire features the finest historical ceramics

54–57 Composing with colour

For Sara Moorhouse it's all about hues and linear decoration

60–64 Masterclass

Aneta Regel reveals how she creates her mysterious pieces

66–67 One to watch

Jade Crompton works with 3D printing and traditional slip-casting

60

Aneta Regel shares her approach to her sculptural forms

CERAMIC REVIEW

=Zc
Cerami

Contributors 4
Subscription details and next issue highlights 79

Regulars

7 Readers' letters
Your news, views, pictures and comments

8-9 News
Our round-up of key stories from the ceramics world

11 Review
Jo Dahn visits Slipping the trail, Philip Eglin's response to 19th-century slipware

20-21 Gallery
Our pick of the crop of current national and international ceramic shows, from Doug Fitch and Hannah McAndrew at the Leach Pottery, to an in-depth exhibition devoted to the work of the German ceramist Waltraud Eich

23 The potters' blog
Have you caught up with Svend Bayer's blog? We speak to him and the potter he collaborates with to bring it online, Brigitte Colleaux

48-49 Auction eye
Michael Jeffrey from Woolley and Wallis reports on the rise in interest in Martin Brothers wares

59 Books
Our choice of four new reads from the ceramic world

69 Review
Andy Christian reports back on the 56th La Biennale di Venezia

70-73 CPA News
The newsletter for Craft Potters Association members

80 From our archive
We've rediscovered a rich seam of images in our magazine files of Mick Casson at work

24

renegades

Subversive Ceramics is a new book that delves into the relationship between pots and politics. Its author, Claudia Clare, explores some key examples.

CLARE'S POLITICS

HERNANDEZ

RENEGADES

12

Shadows & light

CERAMICS | PEOPLE